

THE GOURMET RETAILER

JUNE 2007 VOLUME 28, NO. 6
WWW.GOURMETRETAILER.COM

World Tea Expo Issue
The Buzz on Energy Drinks p.38
Making Up for Lost Sales p.32

Editor's Choice

By James Mellgren

Dream Foods Volcano Lemon & Lime Bursts

Remember the little plastic lemon-shaped squeeze bottles that supposedly contained real lemon juice? The juice usually tasted like furniture polish. Dream Foods International has launched Volcano Lemon Burst and Lime Burst, a kind of a retro salute to those bottles of yesteryear, but with a few modern twists that make them very useful indeed. First, the lemons are grown near Sicily's Mt. Etna volcano, where the volcanic soil and cool ocean breezes make some of the best fruit in the world. The limes are organically grown in Mexico. The juice (not from a concentrate) is all certified organic and kosher with no additives or dyes. Next, a small amount of essential oil from the peel is put inside the cap so that every time you squeeze out some juice, you get a burst of flavor, hence the name. They are charming and come in two sizes, 200 ml/6.7 ounce and 100 ml/3.4 ounce. The company also produces some extraordinary tangerine and blood orange juice in glass bottles, with all the fruit grown near Mt. Etna. They, too, are certified organic, kosher, and are not made from concentrate. For more information, call 310-392-6324, or visit www.dreamfoods.com.

The Gourmet Retailer Magazine
June 2007